St. Jude patient Angelica, age 7, acute myeloid leukemia

When Angelica first began to experience persistent fevers, soreness and weight loss, doctors couldn't pinpoint why. After a series of tests uncovered the cause, her family was devastated. Angelica suffered from acute myeloid leukemia, an aggressive form of blood cancer. Angelica was referred to St. Jude Children's Research Hospital® for treatment, which included chemotherapy and radiation therapy, followed by a bone marrow transplant. Angelica is now finished with treatment and comes to St. Jude regularly for checkups. She's a spunky girl who loves playing dress-up and pretending she's a movie star. "Everything about Angelica is special," her mom said. "Her smile, her playfulness, her whole life. Because she's happy, I'm happy."

During the month of September through October 15th and in the spirit of Childhood Cancer Awareness Month, Shaw Floors will match donations up to $100 per CTS participant. If you feel moved and led to do so, help make a difference in the fight against childhood cancer.
